According to affidavits submitted to the Supreme Court by George A. Steves, managing attorney in these cases for Dean, Tracy & McBarron of 160 Broadway, who represented Mrs. Henry C. Phipps and twenty other defendants. Mrs. Tracy was never legally married to Edward Tracy, a wealthy malister of Lansingburg, N. Y., who acquired in a prosperous lifetime a vast amount of choice real estate, properties which afterward passed into the ownership of Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Phipps, Mr. de Coppet and the others whose titles had been clouded by her action.

The affidavits contended that the mar-riage certificate presented by her in support of her rights to dower interest was fraudulent, and that she was mar-ried in Idaho in the lifetime of Tracy subsequently to the date of the alleged marriage to Tracy in Lansingburg.

Edward Tracy was a man of large means, a partner in the firm of Tracy & Russell, which conducted a malting ousiness in Lansingburg and a brewing ousiness in this city. Until his death, in 1898, he lived in Lansingburg with his two sisters. Between 1870 and 1880 Tracy & Russell acquired large hold-ings of real estate in and near Fifth ue. Minister uniting the couple was actually Norman C. Stoughton, who had at one time been associated with the Episcopal Church in Athens, N. Y. As the result of this suit, Mrs. Tracy received $700 in settlement of her claims.

A year or so later, when the alleged Mrs. Tracy brought suit in the courts of this county against realty owned by Mr. Carnegle and others, George A. Steves, acting for Dean, Tracy & Mc-Barron, made an investigation of her statements and her papers and of all records bearing on the case. He discovered that there was nowhere any record of a person named "C. E. Stoughton" having existed; and that the Rev. Norman C. Stoughton had retired from the Episcopal ministry and had entered the Catholic faith in 1853, or nineteen the Catholic faith in 1853, or nineteen years before the alleged marriage be-tween Mr. Tracy and Hortense Pine took
